

Andover Warriors for Education (A.W.E.)

Invites You to participate in the creation of Alternative District Measurement with Researcher Jack Schneider

Jack Schneider, Ph.D., is a historian and policy analyst who studies the influence of politics, rhetoric, culture, and information in shaping attitudes and behaviors. Drawing on a diverse mix of methodological approaches, he has written about measurement and accountability, segregation and school choice, teacher preparation and pedagogy, and the relationship between research and practice. His current work, on how school quality is conceptualized and quantified, has been supported by the Spencer Foundation and the Massachusetts State Legislature.

The AWE coalition and the AEA are engaging Professor Schneider to make Andover one of 5 Massachusetts communities to participate in the creation of an innovative alternatives to standardized testing for district quality measurement. In the current context, this local community voice in public education is more crucial than ever!
